University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee Ph.D., Political Science <ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• Exam Fields: American Politics, Public Policy &amp; Public Administration</li><li>• Dissertation: Unequal Representation in Local Democracies: An Analysis of Public Opinion and Policy Outcomes in U.S. Cities</li><li>• Committee: Paru Shah (chair), Tom Holbrook, Joel Rast, Kathy Dolan</li></ul>	Milwaukee, WI 2020
--	------------------------------

Project Description: In my dissertation project, I ask whether constituent preferences are equally represented in local policy outcomes. Applying new methods for the estimation of subnational public opinion, I show that local policy is responsive to citizen preferences, but some opinions appear to count more than others. In order to better understand why unequal preference representation exists, I also explore the institutional processes through which representation occurs.
